BIBLIOGRAPHY
Hoarding Behavior Articles, Books and Websites
Compiled by Henriette Kellum, LCSW
Updated April 20, 2009

Articles

- Erkshire, Helen Worden. Out of This World. New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1953. (Book contains a chapter on the Colyer Brothers Case)
- Hartl, Tamara, PhD; Randy Frost, PhD; George Allen, PhD; Thilo Deckersbach, PhD; Gail Steketee, PhD; Shannon Duffany, PhD and Cary Savage PhD. “Actual and Perceived Memory Deficits in Individuals with Compulsive Hoarding”, Wiley-Liss, Inc. June, 2004.
- Samuels, Jack; Shugart, Yin Yao; Grados, Marco A; Willour, Virginia L.; Significant Linkage to Compulsive Hoarding on Chromosome 14 in families

Books

- Erkshire, Helen Worden. Out of This World. New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1953. (Book contains a chapter on the Colyer Brothers Case)

Websites:

Hoardning Information:

- http://understanding_ocd.tripod.com/hoarding.html Contains General Information About Hoarding Behavior and is geared towards persons who hoard
- http://www.heidischulz.com Collaborative Therapy. This website describes a collaborative approach to hoarding behavior between a professional organizer and a psychologist with a specialization in AADD (Adult Attention Deficit disorder)
- http://www.nursingcenter.com screening older adults for executive dysfunction – website of the American Journal of Nursing

Support Groups:

- http://www.messies.com/ Interactive website of “Messies anonymous”. For persons who have organizing difficulties. Provides tips and other information
- http://groups.yahoo.com/group/TwelveStepGroup/ Modeled after the twelve step program of AA
- “Children of Hoarders”. www.childrenofhoarders.com This website has general information about hoarding, links to other sites, personal stories and a list by State with links and resources.
- Support Group for persons who hoard who have been diagnosed with OCD. http://health.groups.yahoo.com/group/H-C/ Contact Paula Kotakis at H-c-owner@yahooogroups.com

Service Organizations:

• www.nsgcd.org National Study Group on Chronic Disorganization. Gives guidance to professionals on how to help persons who are chronically disorganized
• www.napo.net National Association of Professional Organizers. Provides tips on helping persons who hoard
• http://www.nasmm.org National Association of Senior Move Managers (NASMM) Move managers assist with decluttering and organizing items in preparation for a move.
• http://www.NAELA.org/MemberDirectory National Association of Elder Law Attorney’s (NAELA). Assist clients with representation in legal proceedings and assist concerned others with obtaining guardian/conservator for an incapacitated person.
• www.caremanager.org National Association of Professional Geriatric Care Managers (GCM ). Assist with assessment and coordination of services to assist the client. Many care managers also provide direct help to clients with de-cluttering.
• http://therapists.psychologytoday.com/rms/prof_search.php List of mental Health Treatment Professionals. Does not list clinicians by hoarding specialty. Treatment professionals include psychiatrists, psychologists and clinical social workers. Psychiatrists can assess if the client can benefit from medications although to date, there is no medication that “cures” hoarding. Medications however can help with anxiety and depression and can help the client be more comfortable while other treatment is taking place. Psychologists are unique as they provide diagnostic testing which can reveal particulars about brain functioning, emotional problems or personality traits. Psychologists and Clinical Social Workers are often trained in providing Cognitive Behavior Therapy (CBT) which is to date the only effective treatment for hoarding. In addition to providing CBT, Clinical Social Workers are often familiar with doing in-home work and helping families cope.